Released Again.

Special to the Appeal.]

NASHVILLE, January 23.—Judge Reed, in the circuit court today, discharged Jack Wren on a writ of habeas corpus. The appealed entry was made on the minutes of the court.

ation where it appeared to the court that said defendant had been sentenced to the penitentiary for fifteen years for the criminal code at Memphis, for the county of Shelby, Tennessee, for the year 1872.

And by virtue of said judgment he was placed in said penitentiary in the year of 1872.

And it is further argued that on December 27, 1872, said Jack Wren was pardoned by the governor of the State of Tennessee, and he was immediately and never return, and which said pardon was not subject to be annulled.

ears; and the court being of the opinion that the government had no power to revoke his pardon, and further, that the terms of the condition of pardon had not been breached; and further, that his committing to prison under the re-arrest affidavit was not warranted by law, as it had not been adjudged by a court of competent jurisdiction that he had committed a crime after pardon. The court therefore orders that he be released and discharged from custody, and that the state pay the costs of this proceeding.

The senators and representatives of the second district met and appointed a committee to wait on the governor and urge him to fill any vacancy that may occur in the supreme bench from said district.

Our Letter.

JACKSON, January 22.—I sharpened my

...to elect a United States senator to succeed Hon. B. K. Bruce, and expecting that the sharp points would be needed to chronicle the brilliancy of the speeches, and the beauty of the audience. Between the galaxy of Jackson's stars in the Senate and the Democratic executive caucus night, after night, and the persistent lobbyists who have filled the gallery nightly, hoping to throw in a word be-other with the fact that the draft here had been broken, I thought I would have such brilliant thoughts to commit to paper that sharp points were indispensable. But I was mistaken. A piece of burnt cork or charcoal on a whitewashed wall would have answered the purpose. Perhaps there was half a dozen ladies in the gallery; the ladies were vacant. At noon the senate proceeded to the hall of the house; I represented,

He had declined the question, it was said, on the matter of form to take the ballot. The platform had advised you of the result. The plauds and very high applause which followed the announcement that General J. Z. George, chief justice of the supreme court of Mississippi, had been elected to the United States senate, must have been anything but satisfying to that gentleman's adherents. When the motion was made that the election be made unanimous

The gentlemen who have strenuously worked to defeat the election of the leader of the Democratic party—Hon. E. B. Burdette—have won their victory, but its fruits are yet to be seen. When General Walthall's patriotic letter of withdrawal was received with regret, the gentleman who had been elected to the position of governor was not known to the public. He was a man of high standing and of high ability, and his election was a great honor to the State. the friends expressed, and the contest then narrowed down to Barksdale and Singleton, one ballot would have decided the matter and the friends of both parties would have suffered the result, legislation would have been longer delayed, and business would have been proceeded with without delay. But the desire to beat Barksdale prevailed in the bosoms of some, and their desire has been gratified.

committees of 1875, or any member thereof, had called upon you to give, or had voluntarily given their knowledge of the manner in which the case had been decided by the State was restored to home-rule and prosperity, and which credit has done much for the election of the United States senator-elect, and, they would have said that not a single word made on a turn of hand without the silver, and, consequently, none of the

but the facts are undeniable. This defeat will not swerve Esaukadee's fealty to the Democratic party. He will be the foe as ever. He is a man who stands his chance by the hazard of the die, and win or lose stand by the result; not like the old cardinal, whine: "Cromwell! Cromwell! had I but served my God as I have served my king, He would not in mine age have left me to win or lose!"

ST. LOUIS, January 23.—The Post-Dispatch newspaper office was damaged to the amount of about five thousand dollars, by fire, early this morning. The press was badly scorched and considerable material destroyed, but the paper will appear as usual this evening. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

The wholesale drug house of Robert B. Smith, at Alton, Illinois, was burned yesterday.
